DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The term "loose" in claim 15 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "loose" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention. The connection is rendered indefinite by the use of this term.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 3-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Janesky (U.S. Patent 6,276,093) in view of West (U.S. Patent 1,799,489).

Janesky discloses a pair of cover plates (18, 20) having different sizes and arranged in juxtaposition (Figure 1), but is silent regarding strengthening members as claimed. Pate teaches arranging strengthening members (25, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 47) on separate plates in the manner claimed (Figures 2 and 6). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used the strengthening members of Pate with the plates of Janesky in order to strengthen the plates. Note that Pate includes fewer strengthening members on the smaller plate. West discloses primary (11, 12) and auxiliary (13) strengthening members disposed on a cover in order to strengthen the cover as desired (Figures 5 and 6, for example). This is done in order to obtain a strong cover, as is common in the art and the purpose of strengthening ribs. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have configured Janesky/Pate in the manner claimed in order to obtain a cover suitable for handling design loads.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have positioned the ribs in any orientation with respect to the line of juxtaposition.

Regarding claims 7 and 8, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used any number of cover plates in order to suit a particular application. This is a simple duplication of existing parts.

Janesky is circular; however, the examiner takes Official notice that there is no patentable distinction between circular and rectangular covers, as they are well known alternatives. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used a rectangular cover in order to cover a rectangular opening.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 16 November 2009 have been considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection. The size and configuration of strengthening ribs is a standard design consideration and it is within ordinary skill to have placed strengthening ribs as desired in order to obtain a cover suitable for handling design loads. In short, there is nothing patentable about configuring strengthening ribs because this is standard design practice. Applicant has not invented strengthening ribs and is not entitled to a patent for this.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
